

BIOGRAPHY

Kevin Penkin
Composer

BAFTA Award-nominated Kevin Penkin is the composer of “Dragon Striker.”

Penkin is best known for composing the award-winning score to “Made in Abyss” and the music to the BAFTA Award-winning game “Florence.”

He has collaborated with legendary video game composer Nobuo Uematsu on a number of Japanese video game titles, which eventually led him to break into the anime industry. After releasing his breakthrough score for “Made in Abyss,” Penkin continued to compose music for Japanese animation, with scores for both “The Rising of the Shield Hero” and “Tower of God.”

Throughout his career, Penkin has recorded with orchestras around the world. His work has been recorded in Prague, Vienna, Macedonia, Boston, Nashville and Australia. He has also collaborated with acclaimed singers Takeshi Saito, Emi Evans and Raj Ramayya.

His additional credits include “Star Wars: Visions,” “Pokémon: Paldean Winds,” “Bāan: The Boundary of Adulthood,” “The Apothecary Diaries,” “Sin Chronicle,” “Arknights” and more.

Penkin currently resides in Melbourne, Australia.
