

BIOGRAPHY

MAURA HIGGINS

Contestant on ABC's "Dancing with the Stars"

Maura Higgins is a globally recognized TV personality, host and creator, currently having a major cultural moment following her runner-up finish on NBC's "The Traitors" and ahead of her upcoming season on "Dancing with the Stars." Widely regarded as the biggest name to come out of "Love Island" globally, she made history as the first U.K. islander to cross into the U.S. series in a hosting capacity, fronting both "Love Island USA: Aftersun" and "Love Island Games: Aftersun." Her momentum has been amplified by high-profile press runs with appearances on "TODAY" and "Watch What Happens Live," alongside features in Elle and Vulture and her recent Sports Illustrated Swimsuit Runway debut.

On the style front, Higgins has made headline appearances at the TIME 100 Gala, Glamour Women of the Year Awards, British Fashion Awards and the Golden Globes®, earning widespread acclaim from Vogue, Glamour, Cosmopolitan and The Cut, with British Vogue naming her the "most divine woman on television." With a global following of over six million and brand partnerships spanning Victoria's Secret, L'Oréal Paris, M.A.C Cosmetics, Guess and many more, Higgins continues to cement her status as one of the most influential multiplatform talents today.
