CHRIS O'DONNELL

Don Hart on ABC's "9-1-1: Nashville"

Chris O'Donnell starred as G. Callen in CBS' hit drama "NCIS: Los Angeles," which ran for 14 seasons and is one of the longest-running primetime CBS series in history. Most recently, he guest starred opposite Pete Davidson in Peacock's "Bupkis." His television credits also include the TNT miniseries "The Company" and the hit series "Grey's Anatomy."

O'Donnell made his motion picture debut as Jessica Lange's rebellious son in Paul Brickman's "Men Don't Leave." In 1993, O'Donnell was nominated for a Golden Globe® and won the Chicago Film Critics Award for his role opposite Al Pacino in the Academy Award®-winning film, "Scent of a Woman," directed by Marty Brest. He is also known for his portrayal of Robin in the highest-grossing film of 1995, "Batman Forever." Other film credits include "The Chamber," "Fried Green Tomatoes," "In Love and War," "Cookies Fortune" and "Vertical Limit."
